

CONTENT CREATOR, CREATIVE LEADER, & TALENT DEVELOPER

My journey began at age 15 when I produced a documentary for The Connecticut Hospice, America's first hospice organization.

At Emerson College, I supplemented my film education with a range of independent productions. Along the way, I learned under Kevin S. Bright, executive producer of Friends, whose mentorship helped shape my approach to both storytelling and leadership.

Later, I became the first employee at AfterBuzz TV and rose to Chief Operating Officer, scaling the company into one of the largest digital entertainment networks. I oversaw production for more than 150 weekly shows while mentoring hosts and emerging talent.

Since then, I collaborated with organizations including The Grammys, goop, and Alzheimer's LA. In addition to producing film, podcast, and digital content, I create educational resources and speaking engagements that equip artists with the practical, business, and mindset tools needed to build sustainable creative careers.

Whether producing, teaching, coaching, or creating, I remain committed to helping others realize their creative potential.
